Phillida and Corydon.

In the merry month of May,
in a morn by break of day,
With a troop of damsels playing,
Forth I rode, forsooth, a-Maying;
When anon by a woodside,
Where as May was in his pride,
I espied, all alone,
Phillida and Corydon.

Much ado there was, God wot! He would love and she would not. She said, "Never man was true." He says, "None was false to you." He said he had loved her long. She says, "Love should have no wrong, Corydon he would kiss her then. She says, "Maids must kiss no men, Till they do for good and all." Then she made the shepherd call All the heavens to witness, truth Never loved a truer youth.

Thus, with many a pretty eath.
Yea and nay, and faith and troth,
Such as silly shepherds use
When they will not love abuse—
Love, which had been long deluded,
Was with kisses sweet concluded; And Phillida, with garlands gay, was made the lady of the May. Nicholas Breton.

THE HAUNTED PALACE.

By EDGAR ALLAN POE.

The portrait, autograph and biographical sketch of Poe have already appeared in this series.

N the greenest of our valleys By god angels tenanted, Once a fair and stately palace—
Radiant palace—reared its head.
In the monarch Thought's dominion, It stood there; Never scraph spread a pinion Over fabric half so fair.

Banners yellow, glorious, golden, On its roof did float and flow his—all this—was in the olden Time long ago),
And every gentle air that dallied,
In that sweet day,
Along the ramparts plumed and pallid,

A wing-ed odor went away.

Wanderers in the happy valley Through two luminous windows saw
Spirits moving musically,
To a lute's well-tun-ed law,
Round about a throne where, sitting.

In state his glory well befitting,
The ruler of the realm was seen.

Porphyrogene,

And all with pearl and ruby glowing
Was the fair palace door,
Through which came flowing, flowing, flowing, And sparkling evermore, A troop of Echoes, whose sweet duty

Was but to sing.
In voices of surpassing beauty,
The wit and wisdom of their king.

But evil things, in robes of sorrow, Assalled the monarch's high estate; (Ah, let us mourn, for never morrow Shall dawn upon him desolate!) And round about his home the glory That blushed and bloomed, Is but a dim-remembered story Of the old time entombed.

And travelers now within that valley Through the red-litten windows see Vast forms that move fantastically To a discordant melody; While, like a ghastly rapid river,
Through the pale door
A hideous throng rush out forever,

And laugh-but smile no more.

This series began in The Times-Dispatch Sunday, Oct. 11, 1903. One is published each day.

between "Wolf" and Red Riding Hood, and a solo, "The Woodman's Life."

In act third, the first solo, "There's No Grandmother Here," is sung by "Wolf"; then he and Red Riding Hood are heard in a duet. A trie, "In Woods is Peace," is given by "Mother," "Woodman" and "Wolf." Scene third brings the audience home and to the closing number, "Goodnight, Sweet Dreams," rendered by "Mother" and chorus.

The muste of the whole production is airy and beautiful, and the choruses of children's voices are particularly good. The "Bubble" chorus in the first act will present a feature altogether now, for half the children will be engaged in keeping the glistening bubbles floating in the air, while the other half sing the dainty melody.

The "Flower Maidens" will perform an elaborate drill with hoops of flowers, and the "Bluebells" will tinkle the itny bells on their wands as they sing. Mrs. James Scott will be the accompanist.

The following Item of interest to the local chapter, Doughters of the Confederacy and the board of the Home for Needy Confederate Women, is taken from the Newport News Dailly Press of yesterday

Newport News Dailly Press of yesterday and says:

After hearing an address from Mrs. Andrew Jackson Montague, wife of former Governor Montague, yesterday afternoon, the Old Dominion Dragoons Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy decided to endow a room in the Home of Needy Confederate Women in Richmond.

Mrs. Montague delivered an interesting talk, in which she gave a comprehensive review of the work of the institution. Chapter Meeting.

The Richmond Chapter, Daughters of he Confederacy, met yesterday in Lee After the transaction of routine busistitution was changed, the annual dues being made seventy-five cents, and life membership dues ten dollars. Then it was found, after reading the constitu-tion, that many minor changes were necessary, and the president of the chap-ter was requested to appoint a commit-tee to bring the revision before the next meeting. ness, the membership clause in the con-stitution was changed, the annual dues tee to bring the revision before the next meeting.

Letters of sympathy were directed to be sent to Mrs. Francis Boykin and Miss Gilliam. Two new members were received into the chapter, Mrs. Robert T. Sydnor and Mrs. T. Gordon Strachan, the latter transferred from -Harrison-Harwood Chapter, of which she has been secretary since its organization.

Mrs. Randolph then road a most pathetic letter from Mrs. Virginia B. Hilliard, of San Francisco, an honorary member of the Richmond Chapter, who said that she had seen the collections of fifty years and her home vanish from

FRIGHTFUL TIMES

Former Chief Fuqua Gives Some Graphic Accounts.

Captain John H. Redwood, a member eal estate firm of Garrison and Redw received a letter from Mr. A. L. Fuqua, a former chief of the Richmond Fire Department, who was succeeded by Chief Puller. Mr. Fuqua writes from San Francisco, and vividly relates the terriblo times he and his wife experienced during the cartinquake there. Mr. Fuqua was strong in his pruise of the Ban Francisco firemen. He says:

"The fremen stuck to their post like heroes, I sat in Jefferson Fark with my wife for forty-eight hours and doubt and the park and went into a permanent camp and slept on the henches-pot tired of seeing the lown hurn. Some of the wealthy are drawing rations with the poorest. All are on a level.

Mr, Fuqua went on to say that the movement of the earth could plainly be seen when one looked down at the ground. He says hat when the first shock came he managed to put on nil his clothes before leaving his hote, but that the swaying movement would hardly let him keep his feet. the was succeeded by Chief Puller.
